

Appendix F: BTU Bulletin

RESEARCH OPPORTUNITY – Northeastern University Doctoral Study

Seeking Participants: High School Teachers and Disciplinarians (Deans of Students)

School-to-prison pipeline - A qualitative research study focusing on understanding the real life perspective of those who work with students every day. The study is looking to understand the role educators may play in school discipline and the indicators, correlations and possible connections to what is known as the school-prison-pipeline. The researcher would like the opportunity to interview high school educators, preferably teachers, dean of students and disciplinary staff about their experiences as an educator as it pertains to the discipline of students. Understanding educator's role in the school-to-prison pipeline is key to understanding why the pipeline still exists.

Contact for more information: JEFFREY S. LOPES, MPA, Doctor of Law and Policy Candidate

Email: LOPES.J@Northeastern.edu

Advisor: Dr. Kimberly Larson, Ph.D, JD, Director, Northeastern University, Doctor of Law and Policy